

High Voltage, Inc. to participate in GiveNOLA Day 2014!

New Orleans, LA-April, 2014-High Voltage, Inc. announced today its participation in GiveNOLA Day, a citywide, online day of giving to be held on Tuesday, May 6, 2014.

Our social media campaign will be led by the local Google Community Leaders. The Google Community Leaders Program is a year-long internship program where motivated and passionate students from Dillard, Xavier, Loyola, and Tulane are assigned to teams that tackle different issues of web literacy in the Greater New Orleans area. High Voltage, Inc. has been working with both the Music Technology and Non-Profit teams for the past several months, and it's been an amazing partnership. "We thank the interns we've worked with for all their help in expanding our Internet presence," said Katherine Johnson Board President of High Voltage, Inc.

High Voltage Youth Camp is a (501) © (3) corporation that provides education and recreation programs of economically disadvantaged youth. We are dedicated to helping youth realize their potential, build character, and function effectively as contributing members of society. High Voltage also works to build community collaborations, and partnerships with organizations that serve youth.

Our GiveNOLA Day campaign is being underwritten by Charles Levy Employee Benefits Planners and Charles Hermanns' Insurance Agency. In-kind services are provided by Entergy, Inc. and Vivid Image Consulting.

To kick off our campaign, we're will be touring the city by bus and spreading the word on GiveNOLA Day, followed by a live on-line radio broadcast at the "Dish On Haynes" from 6-8 p.m. D. J. will be in the house and "free swing lessons" will be offered by____. This fundraising event is a way for our community to come together to give as one.
